BBC (9 November 2020)

The rapid closure of displacement camps in Iraq could leave more than 100,000 people without shelter in the middle of the coronavirus pandemic and as winter approaches, an aid group has warned.

People in camps in seven provinces were being forced out with little notice, the Norwegian Refugee Council said.

The government expects them to return to their areas of origin. But many of those were destroyed during the war against the ISIS/ Daesh group and still have not been rebuilt.
