A gun battle has erupted between Myanmar junta and an alliance of armed ethnic groups opposed to February's coup, at a town on the border with China.

The fighting at Muse, one of the main crossing points to China, is the latest to hit Myanmar since the coup led to an upsurge of conflict with insurgent groups in border regions, as well as bombings, shootings and arson across the country.

Gunfire broke out in Muse around dawn, broadcaster DVB and Khit Thit Media said.
