Frontex has announced its recruiting, but its not necessary for candidates to have prior experience in law enforcement. Frontex is the European Union agency that patrols the blocs external borders to keep illegal migration at bay.

According to a job advert posted on their website, those applying for a basic level standing corps position, in principle do not require previous law enforcement experience.

Frontex wants to recruit 200 new cadets by January 2022 who they will extensively coach and train over a period of 12 months. Once qualified, these individuals will wear a uniform and carry a service weapon. Their job will be to perform border and coast guarding functions at the EUs external borders.
