Kazakhstan has clearly stated that it will follow the sanctions regime against the Russian Federation, said President of Kazakhstan Kassym-Jomart Tokayev after negotiations with German Chancellor Olaf Scholz in Berlin, APA reports.

"We have contacts with the relevant organizations to comply with the sanctions regime, and it seems to me that there should not be any concerns on the German side regarding possible actions aimed at circumventing the sanctions regime," he said.

In addition, Tokayev noted that Kazakhstan does not have any concerns regarding territorial claims from Russia.
