Well, the Trump shows just been rebooted. And Europe cant look away.

European policymakers have spent months preparing for Donald Trumps potential return to the White House. But lets be honest, they dont really know how this will all unfold.

For instance, Trump has promised to slap tariffs on every single European good entering the U.S. So the EU has preemptively locked and loaded some retaliatory measures. Seems logical □ but that only works in a world where Trump is not erratic and impulsive.
