Earlier this month, Kazakh Deputy Prime Minister Serik Zhumangarin met Hong Kong commerce and economic development secretary Algernon Yau Ying-wah in Urumqi, the capital of Chinas Xinjiang Uygur autonomous region. Zhumangarin reportedly invited representatives of the Hong Kong stock exchange to Kazakhstan to share their experience.

It is no secret that Kazakhstan seeks to build stronger ties between the Astana International Financial Centre and the Hong Kong stock exchange.

In an interview with the Post on October 6, Almas Seitakynov, Kazakhstans top envoy in Hong Kong, said that his country would like to boost trade ties with the city and connect Kazakhstans financial centre in Astana with the Hong Kongs stock exchange while pushing to bolster cooperation under the Belt and Road Initiative.
