The second high-level strategic partnership dialogue between Iraq and NATO was held at the National Security Advisory headquarters on Wednesday.

The National Security Advisor's media office said in a statement received by the Iraqi News Agency (INA) that "The second high-level strategic partnership dialogue between Iraq and NATO was held at the National Security Advisory headquarters. The Iraqi side was headed by National Security Advisor Qasim al-Araji, while the NATO delegation was headed by Assistant Secretary General for Operations Thomas Goffus."

"The two sides discussed ways to strengthen the strategic partnership, which is a priority for the Iraqi government, in line with its strategic vision in light of rapid regional developments."
