Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi hailed steady progress in improving relations with China after meeting its top diplomat Tuesday following a yearslong standoff between the nuclear-armed Asian powers.

Modi noted respect for each others interests and sensitiveness in a statement on social media after meeting Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi. Chinas foreign ministry said the countries have entered a steady development track and should trust and support each other.

Wang on his visit also has met with Foreign Minister Subrahmanyam Jaishankar and national security adviser Ajit Doval about the countries disputed border in the Himalayan mountains. Indias Foreign Ministry said Wang and Doval discussed deescalation, delimitation and boundary affairs.
