Premier Kyriakos Mitsotakis hails it as historical development

Greece to start offshore drilling in the Ionian Sea with the participation of major US energy company ExxonMobil.

According to a deal that was signed during the sixth meeting of the Partnership for Transatlantic Energy Cooperation (P-TEC) in Athens on Thursday between major US energy company ExxonMobil, London-based Greek-owned energy company Energean, and Greeces HelleniQ Energy, the consortium will focus on the Block 2 offshore area in the Ionian Sea west of Corfu, which has been managed by Energean and HelleniQ Energy since 2020.
