'I can confirm that we are looking into additional measures,' spokesperson says

The European Commission on Thursday said that discussion of banning multi-entry Schengen visas for Russians has not been part of any EU decision, while confirming it is assessing further measures with member states.

Responding to a report that the EU plans to end multi-entry visas for Russians, Commission spokesperson Markus Lammert said at a press briefing in Brussels that the EU "never comments on leaks" but noted the steps already taken since the war began.
