Bangladeshs Supreme Court on Thursday restored the system of nonpartisan caretaker governments for transfers of power, a key longstanding demand of political parties in the politically unstable South Asian country.

Attorney General Md Asaduzzaman told reporters: "Today's verdict reinstates the previous caretaker government system. This will take effect within 15 days of the dissolution of the next parliament."

Though the next parliamentary election will be held under the current interim government of Muhammad Yunus, later, the next national election will be held under the caretaker government system, according to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.
