China on Wednesday urged the US to "correct its wrongdoings" after Washington announced plans to raise tariffs on Chinese semiconductors in 2027.

"China firmly opposes the sweeping tariffs of the US side and holding back Chinese industries groundlessly," Foreign Ministry spokesperson Lin Jian said during a regular news conference in Beijing.

According to a filing by the US trade representative, tariffs on semiconductors imported from China will be increased from the current rate of 0% starting in June 23, 2027, "to a rate to be announced not fewer than 30 days prior to that date."
