Turkish Foreign Minister Hakan Fidan on Monday criticized Greece and Cyprus(*) over their cooperation with Israel, warning it could heighten regional tensions, in an interview with Anadolu news agency.

Cooperation between Greece, the Greek Cypriot Administration and Israel does not bring more trust, it brings more mistrust. It brings more problems and war, he said.

Fidan argued that Athens is pursuing extremely dangerous policies, adding: There are very interesting aspects in Greeces attempt to pursue a kind of policy that no other country in Europe follows alone.
