A new shipment of fuel is set to be exported from Azerbaijan to Armenia, marking the continued expansion of cross-border trade following the easing of transit restrictions.

AzerNEWS reports that 22 rail tank cars loaded with diesel fuel will be dispatched from Azerbaijan to Armenia today. In parallel, four railcars carrying fertilizer from Russia will transit through Azerbaijani territory en route to Armenia.

Cumulative exports highlight the growing scale of energy deliveries between the two countries. To date, Azerbaijan has supplied Armenia with 6,312 tons of diesel fuel, 979 tons of AI-92 gasoline, and 2,955 tons of AI-95 gasoline.
